Old-Line Politicians

Believe Roosevelt is Susceptible to Pressure

WASHINGTON — All during this session of Congress it has been as plain as the Washington Monument that Roosevelt's chief trouble was with his own party in Capitol Hill. Time after time it has been the old-line Democrats who united with Tory Republicans to knife Administration measures.

Some of these old-line Democrats dislike Roosevelt only a few degrees less than they hated Hoover, but never dared say so.

Now they are extremely happy they think they have Roosevelt and his Brain Trust on the run.

It happened this way. Last August, Roosevelt appointed Willard L. Thorp as Director of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. Thorp was Professor of Economics at Amherst College, young, brilliant, author of several notable economic studies. The appointment was widely acclaimed.

Despite this, confirmation was held up in the Senate Commerce Committee. For months it remained there, until it became one of the Mysteries of Washington. No one knew the exact reason for the opposition. Some said it was because Thorp had been rude to Democrats in the Commerce Department, an accusation true of many Brain Trusters—because of their classroom training—but still no real reason for blocking a good man.

Finally it leaked out that four Senator Stephens was the stumbling block. Stephens comes from Mississippi, faces a hard re-election fight, is considered a maverick back in the Senate and got the Commerce Committee chairman's ship through the pure luck of seniority. Stephens claimed that Thorp was a Republican, had registered as such in a local election.

Because of this heinous offense, Stephens, the Senator from Mississippi, resorted to every possible strategy to block the appointment. When other committee members proposed a sub-committee to investigate, he appointed himself chairman of the sub-committee. When Republican members of the sub-committee championed Thorp, Stephens rushed to the White House to urge withdrawal of his name.

Instead, a letter urging approval of the appointment.

By this time, it had become a definite party issue; all the Democrats on the Committee lining up against Thorp, all the Republicans for him. Again Stephens went to the White House. Again he urged Thorp's withdrawal, this time on the basis of overwhelming Democratic opposition in committee.

If the name ever had reached the Senate floor, the opposition would have evaporated. But despite this, Roosevelt got cold feet. He withdrew Thorp's name.

Many foes and some friends of the President think his surrender has an important triple significance.

1. If Roosevelt will back down on a man who has served nine months and served brilliantly, he will yield on other things.

2. Future appointees will be out-and-out Democrats; no more Ickes, Woodrums and Wallaces.

3. The Brain Trust, once sacrosanct, will be sacrificed to political expediency when and if necessary. Whether or not these deductions are correct will be tested soon. Somewhat the same case is that of Professor Rex Tugwell, whose appointment as Under Secretary of Agriculture has been stalled in the Agricultural Committee by Senator "Cotton Ed" Smith of South Carolina. "Cotton Ed" is determined to run Tugwell out of Washington. Other old-line Democrats feel the same way.

The extent of which the President goes to bat on this, his most important Brain Trustee, will indicate how the White House wind is blowing on a lot of most significant things.

NEW YORK-ROME FLIGHT ON

Western Drought His Problem

Adding to the woes of the Department of Agriculture officials are the daily reports reaching Washington from the department's experts in the wheat belt giving details of the drought disaster that has affected 352 counties of eleven states. Secretary of Agriculture Wallace stated there is only one chance in twenty of a wheat famine as the estimate predicts a crop sufficient to take care of domestic needs, leaving a surplus of 250,000,000 bushels from previous crops in storage. Though 1,000,000 bushels of wheat have been destroyed a day and other farm products ruined, Washington economists foresee benefit to the farmer through price increases and reduction of surplus stores.

Supervising Engineer Charged With Murder By San Francisco Cops.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 14.—After a five-hour grilling by police, Millard Hickman, 41, wealthy steamship company supervising engineer, was charged today with the murder of Louise Jeppesen, 23-year-old Utah beauty.

Hickman, according to Assistant District Attorney Peter Mullen, admitted he was with the girl on a "four some party" at his downtown suite the night before her body was found, attacked and brutally beaten, in a lonely tunnel in Golden Gate park.

According to Captain of Inspectors Charles Dulea, Hickman could not account for recent bruises on his left hand and leg.

There was evidence of a fierce struggle at the spot where the body was found.

Hickman told police he escorted the girl in the elevator to the hotel lobby about 3 a. m. yesterday, and left her there.

Her body was found two hours later. Hickman's hotel is five miles from the spot in the park where the body was found.

As Hickman was booked for murder at the city prison, police continued to question Tommy Dee, 48, prominent engineer and yachtsman, and Blanche McKay, 28, beautiful blonde, the other members of the party that preceded the tragedy.

GUN FIRE ENDS EFFORT TO PAY GETTLE MONEY

Believe 'Hi-Jackers' Shot at Emissary; Negotiations Go On

TWO MEN JAILED

Another Contact to Be Tried During Day

LOS ANGELES, May 14.—An emissary sought to pay $60,000 ransom to the kidnapers of William F. Gettle, millionaire financier, early today, but an attempt was made amid gun fire to hi-jack the intermediary.

Somewhere near Downey, a suburb, three carloads of gunmen closed in on the emissary and a gunfight ensued.

The emissary fled to a nearby substation of the sheriff's office and a police car brought a score of radio cars into the district to escort him back to the office of Attorney Ernest E. Noon, chief intermediary for the Gettle family.

TWO ARRESTED
Shortly after the hi-jacking attempt two men were picked up, one of whom was reported to have a gun while the other was said to have a rifle.

The men were being held incommunicado for questioning.

This was the version of the affair given out by District Attorney Buron Fitts today following a conference with other law enforcement heads.

The failure to make the payoff apparently had blocked the release of Gettle which was expected to have been made today.

The payoff attempt started out smoothly. Last night, Attorney Noon made another successful contact with the gunmen who snatched Gettle from his Arcadia country estate last Wednesday night, and was given detailed instructions as to what to do.

FOLLOWED ORDERS
An emissary was chosen and Attorney Noon remained in his office close to the telephone.

Following instructions, the emissary went to Laurel Canyon, near Hollywood, and picked up a note there. This told him to go to a point near Downey. Here he picked up another note which gave instructions to go east on Atlantic boulevard.

As the emissary followed directions, he saw some cars lurking in the distance.

PREDICT MORE RAIN IN OHIO

Quarter Inch Helps Conditions But Much More Is Imperative.

By International News Service.

Cheered by last night's rainfall, which amounted to precipitation of about one-quarter of an inch throughout the state, farmers of Ohio today welcomed the weatherman's forecast of continued showers for today and tonight.

Agricultural experts reported that the rain, although cutting only slightly the shortage in precipitation, will prove a boon to newly-planted corn and oats and vegetables as well.

"There is no doubt but what this rain brightens prospects quite a lot," said Prof. H. C. Ramsower of Ohio State University, head of the state agricultural extension service. "It will help the new grains, and grass, wheat, and pastures undoubtedly will feel the effects."

NEED MUCH MORE
"However, we need a lot more rain," Ramsower said. "An extended period of moist weather would materially help the situation."

There is a good chance for repetition tonight of last night's showers throughout the state, weather observers said. The temperature, which topped 26 degrees with the rain, today stood at the 56 degree mark at 9 a. m.

Fair and cooler weather is predicted for tomorrow.

Shortage of rainfall is 7.57 (Continued on Page Six)

BUILDING PLAN URGED BY FDR

Sends Message to Congress Asking Money for "Renovation" Plans.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—President Roosevelt sent congress a special message today asking legislation to establish a gigantic building and renovating program for homes and small industries throughout the country.

He did not detail the type of legislation desired but simply stated the objectives of the program—absorption of some of the unemployed and an effort "to produce tangible, useful wealth in a form for which there is a great social and economic need."

He asked all possible speed in setting up the necessary machinery.

The program will consist of four major divisions: modernization, repair and new construction; mortgage insurance; mortgage association insurance and building and loan insurance.

Under the plan loans to individuals will be insured by private agencies and insured by some government agency against loss up to a percentage of the amounts advanced.

McNAUGHT ASSAILS COX'S STATEMENT

COLUMBUS, May 14.—Aroused by the remarks of former Governor James M. Cox at a Dayton Democratic meeting, S. F. McNaught, superintendent of the Ohio Anti-Saloon league, today charged that Cox "either doesn't know what he's talking about or else made a deliberate misstatement."

Cox, appealing to Democrats not to let the League or the Ku Klux Klan have any hand in the Ohio primary, declared that "prohibition has been settled and we are free from the old-time saloon."

"I don't see how he could make such a statement in the face of conditions that even the wets concede are worse than they ever have been before," McNaught asserted. "If we don't have saloons now, we do have something many times worse."

Sabelli and Pond First to Enter 1934 Air Derby Over Ocean

TAKE OFF THRILLING

Weather Over Circle Route Doubtful

NEW YORK, May 14.—Under gray skies and with mist rising from the surrounding waters, Cesare Sabelli and his pilot, Captain George R. Pond took off from Floyd Bennett airport today just after dawn in a heavily loaded Bellanca monoplane in an attempt to make Rome, Italy, without a stop.

Unmindful of the flaming death of Francisco De Pinedo, Italy's most colorful flying ace, killed at the same field when his heavily loaded plane failed to rise, Pond risked all.

He faced the heavy plane almost the full length of the runway before even attempting to rise. Ahead of him lay a deadly sand trap of dunes and gulleys. He was rolling towards them more than a mile a minute. At the last, split second he bore the tail down. "The Leonardo Da Vinci" as their plane is called, first skimmed the track then soared over the dunes.

TAKE-OFF CHERIED
The spectators, among whom was the crew of a waiting ambulance, broke into a cheer.

Straight out over Jamaica bay and over the rockaways the plane continued headed for the southwest. Then the "Leonardo" banked like a soaring gull and came back over the field flying 200 feet high now.

The attendants at the Floyd Bennett airport who have witnessed dozens of take-offs across the

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

Negotiations are on to give Circleville a chance to see some of the finest soft ball teams in the state in action this summer—The Circleville Oils opened the inter-city festivities a week ago bumping the Plank Bakers, Columbus, 10-1 Friday, they are scheduled to play a much stronger outfit, the State Highway Division N. 6 team which has Regis Monahan, Blackie Conrad, Ernie Roush, Paul Heineman and several other erstwhile Ohio State stars in the lineup.

A home-and-home series is being booked with the Pharis Tire Co. team of Newark, the best aggregation in the city, and correspondence has been entered into with the Kentucky Colonels, world's champions of Newport, Ky. There is little chance for the Oils against the latter team but the Kentuckians should be a real attraction.

Bob Herdman, who has arranged the game with the Columbus aggregation, is also booking a game with one of Washington C. H.'s good teams for the near future.

Kenny Ash, late of the Red Birds, now pitching for Buffalo, was driven from the mound in the sixth inning Sunday when Syracuse scored eight runs. Ash had pitched five scoreless innings before that time. One of the surprises of the current baseball season is the hitting of Jack Rothrock, former Red Bird, in the St. Louis Cardinal outfield. He has been driving the ball with plenty of power and has forced George Davis and Ernie Orsatti to the bench.

WALKER'S HOMER HELPS ASHVILLE

A home run in the eighth inning by Art Walker, pride of Fox Post Office, with a teammate on base gave the Ashville team of the Central Ohio league a hard-fought victory over Gahanna at the latter place Sunday afternoon. Walker's blow tied up the old ball game and his team went out in the ninth to win the victory with an additional run. The triumph elevated the Ashville club into second place with two victories and one loss. Other Central Ohio league games resulted in Grove City defeating Brice, 11-10, and New Albany whipping Obetz, 8-5.

LIQUOR STORE'S BUSINESS BETTER

Business apparently is on the increase at the state liquor store, W. Main-st., with the $200 mark being passed for the first time Saturday. Sales receipts of the day amounted to $202.70.

SCOUT DRIVE

were awarded the rank of Eagle scout, and during the past 24 years of Scouting only one other boy has received this award in Pickaway-co. Only 22 Eagles altogether in the nine counties of Central Ohio Area Council were earned in 1933.

The Cubbing program for boys 9, 10 and 11 is now available for institutions which desire to use it. One leadership training course was conducted for Pickaway-co in 1933 and another course is scheduled to start on May 15 on Troop Camping and Pickaway-co leaders will be joined by the Scout leaders of Ross-co.

Pickaway-co Troops took part 100 per cent in the Scout circus.

AT PUMPKIN SHOW
The Scout service at the Pumpkin show each year has gained a very fine place for scouting in the hearts of Circleville people. Supervision of this activity has been taken care of through the Council officers and co-operation of local Scoutmasters.

The average cost per Scout to councils in the United States is approximately $11. The Central Ohio Area council has one of the lowest cost per Scout in the country, it being between five and six dollars. Therefore the cost of scouting in Pickaway-co in 1933 was $731. The total amount of financial support which Pickaway-co gave to Scouting was $389.

The question is, "Will Pickaway do its part for its boys in 1934?"

The answer to this question rests on the response which people make to the Sustaining Membership appeal. Certainly the boys here deserve as much support as the boys in other parts of the country.

The interest of parents and other persons in scouting will be reflected by increasing activity of the Boy Scouts.

With the second year of the Ten Year Program which has as its objectives the reaching of one out of every four boys for a period of four years of Scout training, the Boy Scout Movement will be turning into voting manhood a splendid group of men of the highest character trained for citizenship.

Pickaway-co needs 800 sustaining members this year who will lend their support to the Ten Year program.

All troops in Pickaway-co are active except the troop at New Holland and the possibilities are good for a re-organization in that community.

The operation through the Central Ohio area is most economical.

GUN FIRE ENDS

a little side street one block east of Atlantic boulevard.

The emissary knew, according to Fitt's version of the encounter, that something had gone wrong. This was not the spot selected for the payoff. To add to his fear, someone started shooting. According to Fitts it was a constable in the district who was chasing a theft suspect. However other stories have it that the shots were fired at the emissary.

ELUDED CHASERS
The emissary stepped on the gas with the other cars in pursuit. He managed to elude them and reach the nearby substation where the call was sent out for police cars.

After the emissary brought the money back to Noon's office, new efforts were made to contact the kidnapers. It was stated that shortly after the emissary returned a contact was made and by telephone.

"Something has happened out at Downey," Attorney Noon was told. According to Attorney Noon, he took this to mean that the kidnapers were cognizant of the hi-jack attempt.

Another contact was expected sometime today and another attempt to make the payoff was scheduled to be made.

Interest Shown In Capital Tour

Surprising interest is being manifested in the all-expense tour to Washington over Memorial Day, under the auspices of The Herald in connection with the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

In answer to the many questions which have been asked, it can be stated that the price of the tour is only $29.00, and covers the round trip with all expenses paid enroute and while in Washington. The tour includes railroad fare both ways, comfortable accommodation in all-steel coaches; home-like accommodation in the famed New Colonial Hotel in Washington, with all meals in the hotel while on the tour; meals on diner of Baltimore and Ohio enroute; two nights lodging at hotel, with bath; all sightseeing tours under the direction of uniformed lecturers; transportation of baggage; guide and admission fees; personal escort by passenger representative of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad to assure the guests of every comfort and convenience as well as detailed information about what is being viewed.

UNIQUE CAPITAL

It must be understood that the city of Washington is almost unique among the capitals of the world in that it was planned for the express purpose of becoming the center of the national life of a great people. Rome, London and Paris became great capitals through circumstances, Washington through design by its very founders. Hence it is only natural that every day of the year a pilgrimage of decided magnitude wends its way to the city planned by our first President, and in return for the trouble and expense every visitor receives a soul satisfaction and re-awakening of a patriotic impulse impossible to understand by one who has not enjoyed the very thrilling experience of a visit to the District of Columbia.

Through the efforts of Thomas Jefferson, the States agreed to the location of the capital on the banks of the Potomac River. In January, 1791, a commission was appointed to run lines of the proposed Federal District. The site chosen was a tract ten miles square on both sides of the Potomac, which was named the District of Columbia, and the city which was laid out was called Washington, in spite of the protests of that great patriot.

To Pierre Charles L'Enfant was assigned the task of designing the future capital of the nation. He was a Frenchman who had been a military engineer in the Army of the Revolution, with an unusual capacity for the work assigned to him. Capitol Hill was chosen as the nucleus of his plan, and from it he laid out wide avenues which would radiate in every direction. In addition, he laid out parks and circles and squares to be formed where these avenues cut at an angle across the lettered and numbered thoroughfares, which were to cross the city at right angles to one another. The building of the city was a slow and oftentimes discouraging process, especially during the early days of the Republic. Gradually the city took shape. In recent years much has been done to beautify this foremost American city and an ambitious program which will cost many millions of dollars is under way to make a Washington which will transcend in beauty and magnificence and dignity and city the world has ever known.

556,000 THERE
Today Washington has a population of well over 500,000, and is devoted largely to the business of the Government with relatively little business or industrial activity.

The Capitol and White House are the two centers from which radiate broad avenues, many of which are completely arched by trees for almost their whole length. The city proper now covers an area of about fourteen miles in circumference, and the District of Columbia embraces a tract of sixty-nine square miles.

Once seen, Washington is never to be forgotten. Thousands upon thousands of people visit it from foreign lands, and it is the privilege of our own citizens to view Washington during this Memorial Day Tour under the auspices of this newspaper, at the remarkably low cost of $29.00, which includes every necessary expense. It is suggested that reservations be made as quickly as possible, as indications point now, to a party of considerable numbers from this city and surrounding territory. Details will be supplied together with literature about the tour, upon request at our offices or at the office of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad in the station.

Ice and Snow Evaporate
Ice and snow will evaporate in extremely cold weather even though the temperature never gets near the melting point. Washed clothing in the Arctic and Antarctic region freezes stiff when first hung out but will be dry in a week's time.

Crime Has Upper Hand

THE helplessness of the country in its war on crime stands strikingly illustrated today on two fronts.

The most expert man-hunters of the nation are unable to bring to justice the outlaw, Dillinger.

In Arizona, federal and state authorities stood idly by while the family of a kidnapped child waited to pay over to the abductors the $5,000 they demanded for her return. The suspension of activities was caused by fear that if this was not done the child would be put to death.

The Dillinger case means merely that a resourceful outlaw is able to outwit, at least for the time being, the best-trained detectives in the country.

Something deeper is involved in the Tucson case. Here is represented a phase of the present crime situation which calls for real concern. It means that the underworld is able to dictate to the government and to force acquiescence in its demands.

The fact that this is made possible through a desire on the part of the authorities to do nothing that might endanger the life of the kidnapped child does not greatly relieve the seriousness of the situation. The condition is a repetition of similar ones in the past, where it has been necessary, for the safety of the kidnapped persons, to suspend official activities pending return of the victim.

Should the abductors be successful in the Tucson case, fresh encouragement again will be given the crime of kidnapping.
What's to be done about it?
Dillinger probably will be captured or killed, but the answer to the question is nowhere on the horizon of law enforcement.

About the only care for a rich old guy's incurable disease is a pardon.

Baseball Still Popular

ULAR interest in boxing and other sports may be dying, but this is some-thing that can't be said of baseball.

The present big league season is a few weeks old but the games are drawing unusually large crowds. This is the case in virtually all of the cities where the games are played.

This situation is encouraging more than one standpoint. It means not only that the public continues to be interested in the great American pastime. At the same time it is a striking illustration that business recovery is under way. Large paid admissions mean that the people—the rank and file—have money and that this money is being put into circulation instead of being hoarded. The big attendance figures also mean that the depression's effects upon the minds of the people are lightening, when people show an inclination to play and be amused, their worries are not heavy.

In addition to those watching the game from grandstand and bleachers, there are millions watching it from public scoreboards and by means of the radio.

America still is baseball-conscious.

SYNOPSIS

Young and beautiful Stanley Paige loses her fortune through market speculation but a harder blow comes when her fiancé, the fascinating, irresponsible Drew Armitage, tells her it would be madness to marry on his income and leaves town. Penniless and broken-hearted, Stanley refuses to seek aid from her wealthy friends. Desiring to make her own way, Stanley drops out of her exclusive circle and rents a cheap furnished room. After a week of loneliness and trying to adapt herself to her poor surroundings, Stanley calls on Nigel Stern, one of her society friends, and asks his aid in securing a position. Nigel urges her to marry the handsome and wealthy young lawyer, Perry Deverest, who has loved her devotedly for years, but Stanley's heart is with Drew. Nigel suggests that she think it over, and then, if she still wants a position, he will try to place her. Stanley does not go back to Nigel, realizing it would mean meeting all her old friends. One day, when Stanley is more lonely than usual, she meets John Harmon Northrup, a struggling young author, and is touched by his sincerity.

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

You said something about writing a novel. Tell me more about it, won't you?" she asked him, and saw his eyes lose their unhappiness, kindle into eagerness.

"I haven't done much on it yet—just a few chapters. I'd like to read them to you sometime, get your reactions. I'm so close to it that sometimes I wonder if I see the thing clearly; if, after all, it's not just a jumble of ideas—and emotions." His eyes brooded suddenly, his voice lost its lightness. "What I really came down to New York for was atmosphere. You see, I don't have any trouble with people—I suppose I have a sort of instinct about them—but I can't create the right background for them. I've never been about, I'm really a great fool; it's a bit of a joke when you stop to think about it."

"I don't seem to see it that way. If you've really got something, if you really can write, nothing is going to stop you. As for background," she shrugged disparagingly, "you can always acquire that, can't you? Given a certain amount of time—"

"—and money," he added quickly. "You see, the people I want to write about are like you—people who have been places and done things, interesting things—"

"And you think I have?"

He looked at her thoughtfully. "I'm sure you have. I don't know what has happened to you, but I'm almost sure that you've had things—money, you know. I've never known any rich people, but I know they're like you. That's what money does for people—makes them sure and a little arrogant and altogether self-possessed."

"And I am like—that?"

"Of course."

She laughed. "Let's not talk about me. Let's talk about your novel. I'd like to see it, have you read it to me—"

"Do you really mean that? Do you mean that you'd come home with me now and listen to some of the chapters and talk it over with me? You'd do that?"

"Why not?" She smiled at him. She didn't know whether that was what she had meant or not. It didn't really matter. She thought suddenly that all that really mattered just then was that she shouldn't have to go back to that hot, small room beneath the roof and try to sleep—and be quite unable to do so.

They caught another bus downtown and John Harmon led her to a street not far from her own, to a house nearly as shabby and discouraged looking as Mrs. Foley's. But not quite. It had a finer line of proportion, a sort of blurred beauty which had defied the years and its change of fortunes. Its steps were shallow and gently rising, its door was wide and deep-set, its windows were high and small-paneled.

His room was on the first floor and had once been a fine old drawing room. Stanley looked about her curiously, appreciating the beauty of the black walnut fireplace, the paneled walls, the high ceiling.

He put her in the one comfortable chair and lighted a cigarette for her, and then somewhat shyly, and in a voice that was husky with self-consciousness, he told her the plot of his novel, breaking off now and then to read her pages of the finished chapters. As the story took shape and became real, his voice grew sure of itself, became firm and quietly compelling. He would stop now and then to look up and say, "Do you think she would have done that? Felt that way about it?" Stanley would nod affirmatively and he would go on with his reading.

"And that's as far as I've gone," he finished finally, tossing the manuscript onto his desk, running his fingers through his rumpled brown hair. "What do you think of it?"

She answered him honestly, her feet curled up beneath her, her head tilted back against the worn leather of her chair. "I think it's good—amazingly good. What happens next? I mean, how does she go on from there?"

"I don't quite know—it hasn't worked itself out yet—but it will." He smiled at her suddenly, a quick, rather charming smile that was at once shy and yet oddly confident. "You know, you've been a peach to listen. Sure you haven't been bored?"

She shook her head. "Perfectly sure, I've liked it."

"It's meant a lot to me having you come here like this. I wouldn't have believed it could have happened—not to me, anyway."

"Why not to you, John Harmon?"

He shrugged, looked at her with a faint flush. "Oh, I don't know. Perhaps because so few things—like this—ever have happened to me. You wouldn't understand—you've always lived differently, I expect. It's funny," he mused thoughtfully, "you and I flung together like this from different ends of society, both of us alone and a bit uncertain. It's rather an adventure."

She looked at him with sudden wistfulness. "I wish I could see that that way. I'm afraid I can't, I'm just sort of drifting."

"You have been hurt, haven't you?" he asked quickly, with soft dismay catching for a moment a drift of pain in her eyes, a thread of misery in her voice. "I'm sorry. I wish I could help you." He stumbled a bit.

She remembered suddenly that she must make it easy for him, that he made things hard for himself. "You have," she said gently, "you've helped me a lot."

"Do you really mean that? Because I'd like to think I had."

"Then, please do," she told him and smiled at him.

It was a quick, sweetly compelling little smile and it dazzled his eyes and struck a sort of sweet terror into his soul.

Somewhere a clock struck one solemn note and he jumped up and insisted upon making coffee over a sputtering gas ring. It was surprisingly good coffee and they drank it and ate some rather stale rolls.

"It's not much of a party," John Harmon apologized, "but I promise to do better next time. There'll be a 'next time,' won't there, Stanley? You'll come again?"

"I expect I will, John Harmon. I like you," she told him simply, "I think you're nice."

He flushed deeply, his eyes shining but horribly embarrassed. "You are, too. I've never known anyone like you before. In fact, I've never known many girls anyway. They've never seemed to like me much. I suppose," he finished honestly, "that I've always been sort of afraid of them. I'm even a little afraid of you!"

"Yes," she said slowly, considering him gravely. "I suppose you would be." And she thought swiftly of Drew, who was not afraid of anything—except poverty—and who was so terribly afraid of that.

"Perhaps that's what makes you so nice," she suggested, putting Drew resolutely out of her mind, bringing her eyes back to John Harmon. "There's something appealing and restful in a man who isn't always on the offensive."

He took her home soon after that. Through quiet, empty streets, past high brick houses. Houses that had seen better days but stood now in silent rows, victims of an ever-encroaching number of latches.

In her own room Stanley undressed and crept into bed. She lay staring sleeplessly into the darkness. For an interval she had been taken out of herself, had escaped her own heartache and despair, but now she was alone again and they came rushing back to her, carrying her with them into the depths.

She thought of Ellen—Ellen who had always been there, so quietly reassuring. And then as always, she thought of Drew. Drew who had been there so short a time but who had brought so much with him—had taken so much away.

Eventually, when the first pale streaks of daylight filtered into the room, she fell asleep.

The next week Stanley found a job. Or rather Valerie found one for her. It was with an importing firm and the work was pleasant and not hard. However, it was merely a temporary position. The girl who had held it had had some sort of nervous breakdown and had been given a three months' leave of absence. But, as Valerie pointed out, three months was a long way off and anything might happen by that time!

So Stanley went back and forth to work, hanging to subway straps, jammed into busses, jostled on hot, spongy pavements. She had a glass of milk and a sandwich at a soda fountain for lunch and came home at night to the blessed respite of a cold tub and fresh clothes. She grew thinner and lost any color she had had in the beginning of the summer and the French words of the office correspondence often danced before her tired eyes.

But she grew strangely, curiously content. She liked the routine of her work, the feeling that she was actually responsible for something, however small, in the greater scheme of things. And no matter how long or how hot the day, there was always John Harmon at the end of it. John Harmon, thinner and not so brown, but with the same intently eager brown eyes.

John Harmon, a bit stooped-shouldered and shabby in his old gray suit, but with a new trick of smiling suddenly and quite delightfully; of making life seem a rather gay and friendly and worth-while adventure.

Cannot Live Without the Pancreas

Authority Gives Some Facts About This Important Gland

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health,
New York City

A GREAT DEAL is written about the tonsils, gall bladder and appendix. These organs are common seats of trouble and it is important for everybody to be familiar with the first signs of a disturbance in one of these organs.

I venture to say that few persons are familiar with the pancreas, another vital organ of the body. In fact, I doubt if many know where it is located.

The pancreas is an important gland. It aids in the digestion of food. We cannot live without it. Inflammation of this gland leads to serious digestive disturbances and prevents the body from obtaining the necessary nourishment.

The pancreas is located in the abdomen, just beneath the liver. It extends from the left side to the right side of the body.

The pancreas secretes organic ferments called "enzymes." These substances digest certain foods. For example, the "lipase" secreted by the pancreas, digests fat, whereas "trypsin" digests protein and "amylase" digests starch.

The pancreas secretes another valuable substance called "insulin." The importance of this product has only been understood within the past decade. A deficiency of insulin leads to an inability of the body to properly burn and utilize sugar. This is what happens in the victims of diabetes.

Unless this deficiency of insulin is corrected by diet or medication, the body accumulates an excess of sugar. This excess leads to distressing symptoms because of the overflow of sugar into the blood stream. Fortunately, this failure of ample secretion can often be corrected by restriction in the daily diet.

Subject to Inflammation
When dieting alone is not sufficient to correct this disorder, artificially prepared insulin can be injected into the body by means of hypodermic injections. Contrary to a common belief, these injections do not cure diabetes. They control the excess of sugar and help the body to burn its food.

Like other organs within the body, the pancreas is subject to inflammation, infection, cyst, abscess, tuberculosis, cancer, and other disturbances. Modern surgery has so advanced that disturbances of this gland no longer bar the profession. The surgeon is able actually to examine the gland and in suitable cases to apply curative surgical measures.

Of course, the pancreas conceals many secrets from the inquiring physician. Many diseases of the pancreas are still incurable, but it is hoped that eventually a cure will be found for all its ailments.

PATTERN 9921
A belt that ends on each side of the front just where the slenderizing point begins is a clever device for making a woman who has to consider lines, look her best.

With warm weather on the way, a few light colored frocks must be put in work—and light colors make a woman look larger unless her pattern is designed—like this one—to offset that effect. This frock is a safe and satisfactory choice for a print with a light ground, or a plain fabric in a lovely summer coloring.

Pattern 9921 may be ordered only in sizes, 36, 38, 40, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires 3½ yards 39 inch fabric and ¼ yard 9 inch lace.

Charge that his bride misrepresented to him the wealth of herself and her family is among the allegations cited in suit of Clendenin J. Ryan, Jr., grandson of the late Thomas Fortune Ryan, multi-millionaire, filed in New York Supreme Court, seeking annulment of his marriage to Countess Marie-Anne Wurmbrand-Stuppach. The suit is remarkable if only for the fact that young Ryan will one day inherit a share of the $142,000,000 left by his grandfather. The bride, a daughter of the late Count Ferdinand Wurmbrand-Stuppach, who once was Imperial Chamberlain to Emperor Franz Josef of Austria, is one of the world's most beautiful women. Her marriage to the Ryan scion at St. Patrick's Cathedral, New York, two months ago, was one of the social events of the season. inches in Ohio since the first of the year, and 1.25 inches since the first of this month, weather bureau records show.

CHICAGO, May 14.—Sectional rains over the weekend brought relief and joy to scattered sections of the middle west, but in many areas the drouth continued unbroken today with forecasters promising no relief.

Fairly heavy rainfalls were reported in sections of Kansas, Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana, Missouri, southern Illinois, and Iowa, but crop experts remained pessimistic, declaring that heavy rains must fall within a week if crops are to be revived.

A fall of snow, equivalent to half an inch of rain, fell over the eastern slope of the Rockies from the Canadian border to the Mexican line, breaking the prolonged drouth in that area. The precipitation has saved the sugar beet crop. Agricultural experts said today.

GRAIN BELT HURT

But farmers in the greater part of the grain belt were not so fortunate. The Dakotas, Minnesota, Nebraska, parts of Iowa and northern Illinois remained in the grip of the drouth today, the vast grain fields dust-swept and parched. Crops are blighted and livestock is suffering from lack of water and green pasturage.

17 MORE PAID TAX ON INCOME IN 1933

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 14.—Prosperity is coming back to Circleville it was seen today by a comparison of income tax returns filed last year with those filed in 1932. The report by the bureau of internal revenue showed that the total number of persons paying income tax increased by 17 in 1933 over the number who filed tax returns the year previous. The increase was from 124 returns in 1932 to 141 returns in 1933.

In Pickaway-co, 19 more persons paid income taxes in 1933 than in 1932, according to the revenue bureau's report.

The comparison between the tax returns filed in 1932 and those filed in 1933, for Ashville was one more last year. For the entire state of Ohio the increase in the number of returns filed in 1933 over those filed in 1932 was 18,659.

great Atlantic which almost laps the marge of their flying field, could not restrain their enthusiasm over the take-off.

Although the weather at the field looked misty and unencouraging the weather bureau had reported that the flyers would find perfect weather 500 miles out and if conditions remained the same they would have a 30 mile wind on their tail all across the Atlantic.

The "Leonardo" carried 650 gallons of gasoline and 24 gallons of oil, enough to keep them in the air between 43 and 44 hours. However, at the end of 38 hours they expect to glide into Mussolini's new airport in Rome.

HAS RADIO RECEIVER

The plane, which is painted a brilliant orange color with narrow tips, is equipped with a radio direction finder. It has a radio receiving set but no sending apparatus. Its number painted on the tail is NR13137.

The flyers are carrying with them rations of concentrated vegetable juice, a container of orange juice, a few chicken sandwiches and two gallons of water.

There was only a small crowd, aside from newspaper reporters, photographers, movie men, airport officials and ground crew, present to see the take-off.

Mindful of the tragedy that had befallen Sabelli's compatriot, Commander Francisco De Pinedo, who was burned to death last fall when his machine failed to take-off, an ambulance and a police emergency truck were standing near the runway.

The flight will be on the Great Circle route flying over the tip of Newfoundland, Pond said before leaving.

Shortly after their take-off a slight drizzle began to fall. Flying field officials said that this should have no effect on their chances.

Cesare Sabelli has been trying to fly from this country to Rome for the last six years.

In 1928 he took off with Roger Q. Williams and Dr. L. M. Pisculli from Roosevelt field and landed at Old Orchard, Me., to await better weather. The flight ended there with the Bellanca company recapturing its plane and Sabelli suing the company for $250,000.

FLIGHT DELAYED

Sabelli brought the Bellanca he is flying in today to the Floyd Bennett airport last July. He made ready for the start on several occasions but each time something interfered. Only a short time ago the department of commerce ordered the flight held up. By the time the ban had been lifted the weather was bad.

Yesterday morning they had the big ship out and ready to go but a shift in the wind changed their minds. They spent Sunday afternoon in getting the big plane ship-shape and slept last night at the field.

"SHOPPING...THERE'S A REAL TEST OF NERVES, TOO, MR. BUCK!"

Listen to what Mrs. Abbot J. Copeland has to say on shopping—and nerves:

"There's no doubt in the world that healthy nerves are vital to a man who goes out and catches wild animals alive. But take it from a busy wife and mother who spends many hours each week searching through the stores—'anxious to make the family budget reach as far as possible—you need healthy nerves to be a shopper, too! Tramping through miles and miles of aisles... pricing, comparing, judging quality and values... well, that's a test of anyone's nerves. 'Nerves' don't ever bother me, though. As for cigarettes, I smoke Camels. They don't upset my nerves. And I have never tasted such flavor and mildness."

Frank Buck, who has brought back many tons of wild cargo from the jungles of Asia, says:

"It takes healthy nerves to bring 'em back alive. It's a job packed with thrills, excitement, and real danger. I never would have been able to populate half the zoos in this country, cross the Pacific 20 times with tons of savage live cargo, and save my own life a half dozen times by quick action if I didn't have healthy nerves. I am a heavy smoker. I prefer Camels, knowing that I can safely smoke all I want without upsetting my nerves."

How Are YOUR Nerves?

Jangled nerves are apt to visit us all. You know the signs—telephone slamming, frowning, hot words that wound others, worrying and fuming over trifles. If you are inclined toward jumpy nerves check up now—on your eating and sleeping, your habits of work and play. Make Camels your cigarette. They never get on your nerves.

Old-Line Politicians Believe Roosevelt is Susceptible to Pressure

WASHINGTON — All during this session of Congress it has been as plain as the Washington Monument that Roosevelt's chief trouble was with his own party on Capitol Hill. Time after time it has been the old-line Democrats who united with Tory Republicans to knife Administration measures.

Some of these old-line Democrats dislike Roosevelt only a few degrees less than they hated Hoover, but never dared say so.

Now they are extremely happy they think they have Roosevelt and his Brain Trust on the run.

It happened this way. Last August, Roosevelt appointed Willard L. Thorp as Director of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. Thorp was Professor of Economics at Amherst College, young, brilliant, author of several notable economic studies. The appointment was widely acclaimed.

Despite this, confirmation withheld in the Senate Commerce Committee. For months it remained there, until it became one of the Mysteries of Washington.

No one knew the exact reason for the opposition. Some said it was because Thorp had been rude to Democrats in the Commerce Department, an accusation true of many Brain Trusters—because of their classroom training—but still no real reason for blocking a good man.

Finally it leaked out that four Senator Stephens was the stumbling block. Stephens comes from Mississippi, faces a hard re-election fight, is considered a moss-baker in the Senate and got the Commerce Committee chairmanship through the pure luck of seniority. Stephens claimed that Thorp was a Republican, had registered as such in a local election.

Because of this heinous offense, Stephens, the Senator from Mississippi, resorted to every possible strategy to block the appointment. When other committee members proposed a sub-committee to investigate, he appointed himself chairman of the sub-committee. When Republican members of the sub-committee championed Thorp, Stephens rushed to the White House to urge withdrawal of his name.

Instead, the President sent the Committee a letter urging approval of the appointment.

By this time, it had become a definite party issue; all the Democrats on the Committee lining up against Thorp, all the Republicans for him. Again Stephens went to the White House. Again he urged Thorp's withdrawal, this time on the basis of overwhelming Democratic opposition in committee.

If the name ever had reached the Senate floor, the opposition would have evaporated. But despite this, Roosevelt got cold feet. He withdrew Thorp's name.

Many foes and some friends of the President think his surrender has an important triple significance.

1. If Roosevelt will back down on a man who has served nine months and served brilliantly, he will yield on other things.

2. Future appointees will be out-and-out Democrats; no more Ickes, Woodins and Wallaces.

3. The Brain Trust, once sacrosanct, will be sacrificed to political expediency when and if necessary.

Whether or not these deductions are correct will be tested soon. Somewhat the same case is that of Professor Rex Tugwell, whose appointment as Under Secretary of Agriculture has been stalled in the Agricultural Committee by Senator "Cotton Ed" Smith of South Carolina. "Cotton Ed" is determined to run Tugwell out of Washington. Other old-line Democrats feel the same way.

The extent of which the President goes to bat on this, his most important Brain Trustee, will indicate how the White House wind is blowing on a lot of most significant things.

MERCHANT VICTIM OF ARMED MEN; GET $350

Frank B. Morrison, Wife, Sister-in-Law Forced to Drive Into Country With Revolver Placed Against Back of Former's Neck; Well-Planned Robbery Leaves no Clues.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff was without tangible clues, Monday, in the robbery and abduction of Frank B. Morrison, Ashville merchant, his wife, and her sister, Miss Frances Gerhardt, early Sunday morning.

After being forced by two armed men to drive several miles northeast of Ashville, Morrison and the two women were put from the automobile. The car was found later by Sheriff Radcliff.

Morrison reported Monday that $350 in money had been obtained by the men, of whom he had no description. He told the Sheriff both men appeared emaciated.

APPEARED AT SIDES

Morrison had taken Walter Flowers, an employee of his grocery, fruit and meat market, to his home and had made a delivery after closing the store at midnight Saturday. He drove his automo-

REPORT, N. J., May 14.—

A masked bandit today took $35 from a cash register of a highway lunch wagon, and then compelled the manager, Clifford Evans, as well as two customers to remove their pants.

George Hattson and Arthur Whitehead, the patrons, sent out an urgent call for help. Police found the stolen pants a block from the scene of the hold up.

While the residence on Long-st. and while the motor was still running one armed man appeared on each side of the car and told him to "keep the motor running."

Morrison and both women were in the front seat. The bandits entered the rear seat and ordered Morrison to back from the drive and to go up the highway past the residence of Commissioner John May and farther northeast. During the drive one of the men held a revolver against the back of the Ashville merchant's head.

When the automobile had reached a spot near the residence of Peck Valentine the robbers told Morrison to stop. He did and all three were ordered from the automobile. Morrison was searched and all his money and checks were taken from him. The two women were unharmed.

AT BOARNE RESIDENCE

The three were then left to make their way to the village. They walked to the residence of Daniel Boone where they called Sheriff Radcliff. The sheriff received the call at 1 a. m.

Morrison told the officer, who was accompanied by Deputy Miller Fissell and Morris Boggs, that he had seen another automobile along the road and thought there might have been a third person and a getaway automobile.

Believing Morrison's car had probably been abandoned the sheriff and his aides went in search of the automobile and found it parked in the middle of the road, a rear door open and the motor still running. A number of checks that had been sorted out of the money were found on the floor of the machine.

The sheriff was searching today for two men who were reported in the village last week asking concerning a number of business places.

Ashville has been the scene of considerable crime activity in recent weeks. Several store robberies there have left local officers puzzled. It was just a week ago that clues unearthed in Ashville led to the arrest of two confessed bank robbers.

KIWANIANS WIN DISTRICT CHEST

Best Percentage of Attendance Gains Coveted Fellowship Chest.

A real honor had been attained by the local Kiwanis club, Charles Radcliff president, Monday, when it was learned the club has been awarded the district Fellowship Chest.

Word of the award was brought to the local club by E. I. Gephart, past president, who spent the week-end in Delaware.

The chest is sought annually by every club in the district. It is presented with a per capita amount of money put into it by each club. The winner is determined by the number of members present at its home meeting the night the chest is presented and by the number of members attending the meeting in which the club presents the chest to another club.

Northwest Columbus club brought the chest here and 14 members took the chest to Portsmouth.

Winning the Fellowship chest is a real feather in the cap of the local organization.

Western Drought His Problem

Adding to the woes of the Department of Agriculture officials are the daily reports reaching Washington from the department's experts in the West, giving details of the drought disaster that has affected 352 counties of eleven states. Secretary of Agriculture Wallace stated there is only one chance in twenty of a wheat famine as the estimate predicts a crop sufficient to take care of domestic needs, leaving a surplus of 260,000,000 bushels from previous crops in storage. Though 1,000,000 bushels of wheat have been destroyed a day and other farm products ruined, Washington economists foresee benefit to the farmer through price increases and reduction of surplus stores.

MAN JAILED IN DEATH OF GIRL

Supervising Engineer Charged With Murder By San Francisco Cops.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 14.—After a five-hour grilling by police, Millard Hickman, 41, wealthy steamship company supervising engineer, was charged today with the murder of Louise Jeppesen, 23-year-old Utah beauty.

Hickman, according to Assistant District Attorney Peter Mullen, admitted he was with the girl on a "four-course party" at his downtown suite the night before her body was found, attacked and brutally beaten, in a lonely tunnel in Golden Gate park.

According to Captain of Inspectors Charles Dullea, Hickman could not account for recent bruises on his left hand and leg.

There was evidence of a fierce struggle at the spot where the body was found.

Hickman told police he escorted the girl in the elevator to the hotel lobby about 3 a. m. yesterday, and left her there.

Her body was found two hours later. Hickman's hotel is five miles from the spot in the park where the body was found.

As Hickman was booked for murder at the city prison, police continued to question Tommy Dee, 48, prominent engineer and yachtman, and Blanche McKay, 25, beautiful blonde, the other members of the party that preceded the tragedy.

GUN FIRE ENDS EFFORT TO PAY GETTLE MONEY

Believe 'Hi-Jackers' Shot at Embassy; Negotiations Go On

TWO MEN JAILED

Another Contact to Be Tried During Day

LOS ANGELES, May 14.—An emissary sought to pay $60,000 ransom for the kidnapers of William F. Gettle, millionaire financier, early today, but an attempt was made amid gun fire to hi-jack the intermediary.

Somewhere near Downey, a suburb, three carloads of gunmen closed in on the emissary and a gunfight ensued.

The emissary fled to a nearby substation of the sheriff's office and a police call brought a score of radio cars into the district to escort him back to the office of Attorney Ernest E. Noon, chief intermediary for the Gettle family.

TWO ARRESTED

Shortly after the hi-jacking attempt two men were picked up, one of whom was reported to have a gun while the other was said to have a rude map of the district. The men were being held incommunicado for questioning.

This was the version of the affair given out by District Attorney Buron Fitts today following a conference with other law enforcement heads.

The failure to make the payoff apparently had blocked the release of Gettle which was expected to have been made today.

The payoff attempt started out smoothly. Last night Attorney Noon made another successful contact with the gunmen who snatched Gettle from his Arcadia country estate last Wednesday night, and was given detailed instructions as to what to do.

FOLLOWED ORDERS

An emissary was chosen and Attorney Noon remained in his office close to the telephone.

Following instructions, the emissary went to Laurel Canyon, near Hollywood, and picked up a note there. This told him to go to a point near Downey. Here he picked up another note which gave instructions to go east on Atlantic boulevard.

As the emissary followed directions, he saw some cars lurking in (Continued on Page Two)

PREDICT MORE RAIN IN OHIO

Quarter Inch Helps Conditions But Much More Is Imperative.

By International News Service.

Cheered by last night's rainfall, which amounted to precipitation of about one-quarter of an inch throughout the state, farmers of Ohio today welcomed the weatherman's forecast of continued showers for today and tonight.

Agricultural experts reported that the rain, although cutting only slightly the shortage in precipitation, will prove a boon to newly-planted corn and oats and vegetables as well.

"There is no doubt but what this rain brightens prospects quite a lot," said Prof. H. C. Ramsower of Ohio State University, head of the state agricultural extension service. "It will help the new grains, and grass, wheat, and pastures undoubtedly will feel the effects."

NEED MUCH MORE

"However, we need a lot more rain," Ramsower said. "An extended period of moist weather would materially help the situation."

There is a good chance for repetition tonight of last night's showers throughout the state, weather observers said. The temperature, which topped 26 degrees with the rain, today stood at the 56 degree mark at 9 a. m. Fair and cooler weather is predicted for tomorrow.

Shortage of rainfall is 7.57 (Continued on Page Six)

BUILDING PLAN URGED BY FDR

Sends Message to Congress Asking Money For "Renovation" Plans.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—President Roosevelt sent congress a special message today asking legislation to establish a gigantic building and renovating program for homes and small industries throughout the country.

He did not detail the type of legislation desired but simply stated the objectives of the program—absorption of some of the unemployed and an effort "to produce tangible, useful wealth in a due form for which there is a great social and economic need."

The program will consist of four major divisions: modernization, repair and new construction; mortgage insurance; mortgage association and building and loan insurance.

Under the plan loans to individuals will be made by private agencies and insured by some government agency against loss up to a percentage of the amounts advanced.

COLUMBUS, May 14.—Aroused by the remarks of former Governor James M. Cox at a Dayton Democratic meeting, S. P. McNaught, superintendent of the Ohio Anti-Saloon league today charged that Cox "either doesn't know what he's talking about or else made a deliberate misstatement."

Cox, appealing to Democrats not to let the League or the Ku Klux Klan have any hand in the Ohio primary, declared that "prohibition has been settled and we are free from the old-time saloon."

"I don't see how he could make such a statement in the face of conditions that even the worst candid are worse than they ever have been before," McNaught asserted. "If we don't have saloons now, we do have something many times worse."

Sabelli and Pond First to Enter 1934 Air Derby Over Ocean

TAKE OFF THRILLING

Weather Over Circle Route Doubtful

NEW YORK, May 14.—Under gray skies and with mist rising from the surrounding waters, Cesare Sabelli and his pilot, Captain George R. Pond took off from Floyd Bennett airport today just after dawn in a heavily loaded Bellanca monoplane in an attempt to make Rome, Italy, without a stop.

Unmindful of the flaming death of Francisco De Pinedo, Italy's most colorful flying ace, killed at the same field when his heavily loaded plane failed to rise, Pond risked all.

He faced the heavy plane almost the full length of the runway before even attempting to rise. Ahead of him lay a deadly mist trap of dunes and gulleys. He was robbed towards them more than a mile a minute. At the last, second he bore the tail down. "The Leonardo Da Vinci" as their plane is called, first skimmed the beach, then soared over the dunes.

TAKE-OFF CHALLENGED

The spectators, among whom was the crew of a waiting ambulance, broke into a cheer.

Straight out over Jamaica bay and over the rockaways the plane continued headed for the southwest. Then the "Leonardo" banked like a sailing gull and came back over the field flying 200 feet high now.

were awarded the rank of Eagle scout, and during the past 24 years of Scouting only one other boy has received this award in Pickaway-co. Only 22 Eagles at all in the nine counties of Central Ohio Area Council were earned in 1933.

The Cubbing program for boys 9, 10 and 11 is now available for institutions which desire to use it. One leadership training course was conducted for Pickaway-co in 1933 and another course is scheduled to start on May 15 on Troop Camping and Pickaway-co leaders will be joined by the Scout leaders of Ross-co.

Pickaway-co Troops took part 100 per cent in the Scout circus.

AT PUMPKIN SHOW
The Scout service at the Pumpkin show each year has gained a very fine place for scouting in the hearts of Circleville people. Supervision of this activity has been taken care of through the Council officers and co-operation of local Scoutmasters.

The average cost per Scout to councils in the United States is approximately $11. The Central Ohio Area Council has one of the lowest cost per Scout of any council in the country, it being between five and six dollars. Therefore the cost of scouting in Pickaway-co in 1933 was $731. The total amount of financial support which Pickaway-co gave to Scouting was $389.

The question is, "Will Pickaway-co do its part for its boys in 1934?"

The answer to this question rests on the response which people make to the Sustaining Membership appeal. Certainly the boys here deserve as much support as the boys in other parts of the country.

The interest of parents and other persons in scouting will be reflected by increasing activity of the Boy Scouts.

With the second year of the Ten Year Program which has as its objectives the reaching of one out of every four boys for a period of four years of Scout training, the Boy Scout Movement will be turning into voting manhood a splendid group of men of the highest character trained for citizenship.

Pickaway-co needs 800 sustaining members this year who will lend their support to the Ten Year program.

All troops in Pickaway-co are active except the troop at New Holland and the possibilities are good for a re-organization in that community.

The operation through the Central Ohio area is most economical.

a little side street one block east of Atlantic boulevard.

The emissary knew, according to Fitt's version of the encounter, that something had gone wrong. This was not the spot selected for the payoff. To add to his fear, someone started shooting. According to Fitts it was a constable in the district who was chasing a thief suspect. However other stories have it that the shots were fired at the emissary.

ELUDED CHASERS
The emissary stepped on the gas with the other cars in pursuit. He managed to elude them and reach the nearby substation where the call was sent out for police cars.

After the emissary brought the money back to Noon's office, new efforts were made to contact the kidnapers. It was stated that shortly after the emissary returned a contact was made and by telephone.

"Something has happened out at Downey," Attorney Noon was told. According to Attorney Noon he took this to mean that the kidnapers were cognizant of the hijack attempt.

Another contact was expected sometime today and another attempt to make the payoff was scheduled to be made.

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

Negotiations are on to give Circleville a chance to see some of the finest soft ball teams in the state in action this summer—The Circleville Oils opened the inter-city festivities a week ago bumping the Plank Bakers, Columbus, 10-1.

Friday, they are scheduled to play a much stronger outfit, the State Highway Division N. 6 team which has Regis Monahan, Blackie Conrad, Ernie Roush, Paul Heineman and several other erstwhile Ohio State stars in the lineup.

A home-and-home series is being booked with the Pharis Tire Co. team of Newark, the best aggregation in the city, and correspondence has been entered into with the Kentucky Colonels, world's champions of Newport, Ky. There is little chance for the Oils against the latter team but the Kentuckians should be a real attraction.

Bob Herdman, who has arranged the game with the Columbus aggregation, is also booking a game with one of Washington, C. H.'s good teams for the near future.

Kenny Ash, late of the Red Birds, now pitching for Buffalo, was driven from the mound in the sixth inning Sunday when Syracuse scored eight runs.

Ash had pitched five scoreless innings before that time. One of the surprises of the current baseball season is the hitting of Jack Rothrock, former Red Bird, in the St. Louis Cardinal outfield.

He has been driving the ball with plenty of power and has forced George Davis and Ernie Orsatti to the bench.

PLEAS CHANGED, TWO MEN FINED

Five others arrested at the same time were fined by the Justice Peace.

MILLERS BEATEN, BIRDS MOVE WEST

COLUMBUS, May 14.—The Columbus Red Birds, 1933 American Association champions, today were resting from their strenuous efforts of humbling the haughty Minneapolis Millers by sweeping the three-game series to climb into third place in the Association race. The Birds are now just three games behind the league leading Millers.

The localities opened the series Saturday by defeating the Minneapolis club, 11 to 0. They continued the onslaught yesterday by copping a double-header from the leaders, 6 to 4, and 14 to 6. Cullop and Mickey Heath batted out a homer each in the nightcap at Columbus while Harris poled a four bagger for the Millers.

The Red Birds were to leave for the plains of Missouri tomorrow where they will open their western invasion Wednesday with the Kansas City Blues.

TOLEDO, O., May 14.—(INS)—The Toledo Mud Hens were bumped into last place in the American Association today after splitting a double-header with the Saint Paul Apostles here yesterday. The Mud Hens took the opener, 2 to 1, behind the five-hit hurling of Truett Sewell, and dropped the nightcap, 8 to 3. The final game of the day was cut to eight innings to permit the Saints to catch a train.

WALKER'S HOMER HELPS ASHVILLE

A home run in the eighth inning by Art Walker, pride of Fox Post Office, with a teammate on base gave the Asheville team of the Central Ohio league a hard fought victory over Gahanna at the latter place Sunday afternoon.

Walker's blow tied up the old ball game and his team went out in the ninth to win the victory with an additional run.

The triumph elevated the Asheville club into second place with two victories and one loss.

Other Central Ohio league games resulted in Grove City defeating Brice, 11-10, and New Albany whipping Obetz, 8-5.

Interest Shown In Capital Tour

Surprising interest is being manifested in the all-expense tour to Washington over Memorial Day, under the auspices of The Herald in connection with the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

In answer to the many questions which have been asked, it can be stated that the price of the tour is only $29.00, and covers the round trip with all expenses paid enroute and while in Washington. The tour includes railroad fare both ways, comfortable accommodation in all-steel coaches, home-like accommodation in the famed New Colonial Hotel in Washington, with all meals in the hotel while on the tour; meals on route; two nights lodging at hotel, with bath; all sightseeing tours under the direction of uniformed lecturers; transportation of baggage; guide and admission fees; personal escort by passenger representative of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad to assure the guests of every comfort and convenience as well as detailed information about what is being viewed.

UNIQUE CAPITAL
It must be understood that the city of Washington is almost unique among the capitals of the world in that it was planned for the express purpose of becoming the center of the national life of a great people. Rome, London and Paris became great capitals through circumstances, Washington through design by its very founders. Hence it is only natural that every day of the year a pilgrimage of decided magnitude winds its way to the city planned by our first President, and in return for the trouble and expense every visitor receives a soul satisfying and re-awakening of a patriotic impulse impossible to understand by one who has not enjoyed the very thrilling experience of a visit to the District of Columbia.

Through the efforts of Thomas Jefferson, the States agreed to the location of the capital on the banks of the Potomac River. In January, 1791, a commission was appointed to run lines of the proposed Federal District. The site chosen was a tract ten miles square on both sides of the Potomac, which was named the District of Columbia, and the city which was laid out was called Washington, in spite of the protests of that great patriot.

To Pierre Charles L'Enfant was assigned the task of designing the future capital of the nation. He was a Frenchman who had been a military engineer in the Army of the Revolution, with an unusual capacity for the work assigned to him. Capitol Hill was chosen as the nucleus of his plan, and from it he laid out wide avenues which would radiate in every direction. In addition, he laid out parks and circles and squares to be formed where these avenues cut at an angle across the lettered and numbered thoroughfares, which were to cross the city at right angles to one another. The building of the city was a slow and oftentimes discouraging process, especially during the early days of the Republic. Gradually the city took shape. In recent years much has been done to beautify this foremost American city and an ambitious program which will cost many millions of dollars is under way to make a Washington which will transcend in beauty and magnificence and dignity and city the world has ever known.

566,000 THERE
Today Washington has a population of well over 500,000, and is devoted largely to the business of the Government with relatively little business or industrial activity.

566,000 THERE
Today Washington has a population of well over 500,000, and is devoted largely to the business of the Government with relatively little business or industrial activity.

The Capitol and White House are the two centers from which radiate broad avenues, many of which are completely arched by trees for almost their whole length. The city proper now covers an area of about fourteen miles in circumference, and the District of Columbia embraces a tract of sixty-nine square miles.

Once seen, Washington is never to be forgotten. Thousands upon thousands of people visit it from foreign lands, and it is the privilege of our own citizens to view Washington during this Memorial Day Tour under the auspices of this newspaper, at the remarkably low cost of $29.00, which includes every necessary expense. It is suggested that reservations be made as quickly as possible, as indications point now to a party of considerable numbers from this city and surrounding territory. Details will be supplied together with literature about the tour, upon request at our offices or at the office of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad in the station.

Ice and Snow Evaporate
Ice and snow will evaporate in extremely cold weather even though the temperature never gets near the melting point. Washed clothing in the Arctic and Antarctic region freezes stiff when first hung out but will be dry in a week's time.

JUST the same, the average young man ought to get a sample of his girl's biscuits as well as her

"I do." "Well, I can't do anything for you till you fire your cook." "But I'm married to her, Doc, so I reckon I'll have to die."

Mrs. Wilson was interested. "And what about me?" she inquired.

"Tell me exactly the day and year of your birth, and I'll give you the answer right away," replied the color expert.

Mrs. Wilson cocked an eyebrow, shook her head.

"Suppose you show me how to read the chart," she demurred. "I'll look up my own fortune."

Forty million persons voted in 1932. That same year individuals paying income taxes numbered 1,525,546. The percentage of income tax payers is expected to be somewhat higher this year. There are still around 15,000,000 persons dependent on relief rolls. — C. L. San Diego

Most senators address one another in private conversation by their first names. This is particularly true of the veterans. On the floor, in formal debate, the rules bar the use of names. Members are required to refer to one another as "the Senator from" whatever State he is from.

CODE REGISTRAR

George E. Hammel, this city was appointed official registrar in Pickaway-co it was announced yesterday by the Retail Solid Fuel Code Authority, Division No. 21, with headquarters in Columbus.

All retailers selling coal in the 86 Ohio counties in the 21st Division are required to register immediately. Mr. Hammel today received official registration blanks for this county.

When local coal dealers have filled these out they will be forwarded to the Divisional Code Authority headquarters at Columbus, and registration certificates will be mailed direct to the dealers.

In all probability the distribution of the new Code Eagles will be made on the basis of this registration for this industry.

Registration at this time is limited to those dealers who did not participate in the Divisional Code Authority election of March 15 or send their registration direct by mail since that time. It is expected that all dealers in coal in the 86 counties of the Division will be registered within the next sixty days.

Maybe the United States would do well to import some of those French spy catchers to put on the trail of its outlaws and bandits.

RESOLUTION OF RESPECT

Once more we are called upon to mourn the loss of a prominent member of our club:

Therefore be it Resolved: That in the Passing On of Harry G. Stevenson, always loyal and energetic to the church in all its Departments, we have sustained a loss which will be felt by all connected with the church.

He was a public spirited citizen, giving generously of his time and means to every good cause, and his death is a loss to the community in which he lived.

"Poor" Countess Sued By Wealthy Husband

THE PERFECT BRIDAL COUPLE Clendenin J. Ryan, Jr. Wurmbrand-Stuppach

PREDICT MORE

inches in Ohio since the first of the year, and 1.25 inches since the first of this month, weather bureau records show.

CHICAGO, May 14.—Sectional rains over the weekend brought relief and joy to scattered sections of the middle west, but in many areas the drought continued unbroken today with forecasters promising no relief.

Fairly heavy rainfalls were reported in sections of Kansas, Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana, Missouri, southern Illinois, and Iowa, but crop experts remained pessimistic, declaring that heavy rains must fall within a week if crops are to be revived.

A fall of snow, equivalent to half an inch of rain, fell over the eastern slope of the Rockies from the Canadian border to the Mexican line, breaking the prolonged drought in that area. The precipitation has saved the sugar beet crop. Agricultural experts said today.

GRAIN BELT HURT

But farmers in the greater part of the grain belt were not so fortunate. The Dakotas, Minnesota, Nebraska, parts of Iowa and northern Illinois remained in the grip of the drought today, the vast grain fields dust-swept and parched. Crops are blighted and livestock is suffering from lack of water and green pasturage.

17 MORE PAID TAX ON INCOME IN 1933

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 14.—Prosperity is coming back to Circleville it was seen today by a comparison of income tax returns filed last year with those filed in 1932. The report by the bureau of internal revenue showed that the total number of persons paying income tax increased by 17 in 1933 over the number who filed tax returns the year previous. The increase was from 124 returns in 1932 to 141 returns in 1933.

In Pickaway-co, 19 more persons paid income taxes in 1933 than in 1932, according to the revenue bureau's report. The comparison between the tax returns filed in 1932 and those filed in 1933, for Ashville was one more last year.

For the entire state of Ohio the increase in the number of returns filed in 1933 over those filed in 1932 was 16,659.

Russell Drum, of Marietta, spent Sunday and Monday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Drum, N. Court-st.

MEN TAKE OFF

great Atlantic which almost laps the masts of their flying field, could not restrain their enthusiasm over the take-off.

Although the weather at the field looked misty and unencouraging the weather bureau had reported that the fliers would find perfect weather 500 miles out and if conditions remained the same they would have a 30 mile wind on their tail all across the Atlantic.

The "Leonardo" carried 680 gallons of gasoline and 24 gallons of oil, enough to keep them in the air between 43 and 44 hours. However, at the end of 38 hours they expect to glide into Mussolini's new airport in Rome.

HAS RADIO RECEIVER

The plane, which is painted a brilliant orange color with narrow tips, is equipped with a radio direction finder. It has a radio receiving set but no sending apparatus. Its number painted on the tail is NR13137.

The fliers are carrying with them rations of concentrated vegetable juice, a container of orange juice, a few chicken sandwiches and two gallons of water.

There was only a small crowd, aside from newspaper reporters, photographers, movie men, airport officials and ground crew present to see the take-off.

Mindful of the tragedy that had befallen Sabelli's compatriot, Commander Francisco De Pinedo, who was burned to death last fall when his machine failed to take-off, an ambulance and a police emergency truck were standing near the runway.

The flight will be on the Great Circle route flying over the tip of Newfoundland, Pond said before leaving.

Shortly after their take-off a slight drizzle began to fall. Flying field officials said that this should have no effect on their chances.

Cesare Sabelli has been trying to fly from this country to Rome for the last six years.

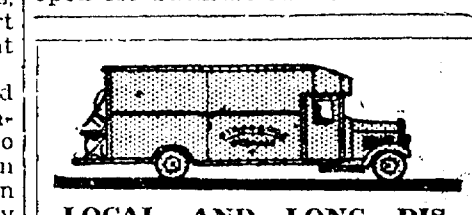

In 1928 he took off with Roger Q. Williams and Dr. L. M. Pisculli from Roosevelt field and landed at Old Orchard, Me., to await better weather. The flight ended there with the Bellanca company recapturing its plane and Sabelli suing the company for $250,000.

FLIGHT DELAYED

Sabelli brought the Bellanca he is flying in today to the Floyd Bennett airport last July. He made ready for the start on several occasions but each time something interfered. Only a short time ago the department of commerce ordered the flight held up. By the time the ban had been lifted the weather was bad.

Yesterday morning they had the big ship out and ready to go but a shift in the wind changed their minds. They spent Sunday afternoon in getting the big plane ship-shape and slept last night at the field.

"SHOPPING...THERE'S A REAL TEST OF NERVES, TOO, MR. BUCK!"

Listen to what Mrs. Abbot J. Copeland has to say on shopping—and nerves:

"There's no doubt in the world that healthy nerves are vital to a man who goes out and catches wild animals alive. But take it from a busy wife and mother who spends many hours each week searching through the stores—'anxious to make the family budget reach as far as possible—you need healthy nerves to be a shopper, too! Tramping through miles and miles of aisles... pricing, comparing, judging quality and values... well, that's a test of anyone's nerves. 'Nerves' don't ever bother me, though. As for cigarettes, I smoke Camels. They don't upset my nerves. And I have never tasted such flavor and mildness."

Frank Buck, who has brought back many tons of wild cargo from the jungles of Asia, says: "It takes healthy nerves to bring 'em back alive. It's a job packed with thrills, excitement, and real danger. I never would have been able to populate half the zoos in this country, cross the Pacific 20 times with tons of savage live cargo, and save my own life a half dozen times by quick action if I didn't have healthy nerves. I am a heavy smoker. I prefer Camels, knowing that I can safely smoke all I want without upsetting my nerves."

How Are YOUR Nerves?

Jangled nerves are apt to visit us all. You know the signs—telephone slamming, frowning, hot words that wound others, worrying and fuming over trifles. If you are inclined toward jumpy nerves check up now—on your eating and sleeping, your habits of work and play. Make Camels your cigarette. They never get on your nerves.

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS than any other popular brand.

If you have experienced the aftertaste often associated with flat-tasting cigarettes, or the "sweet" type, you will appreciate the mildness and rich flavor of Camels. And you can smoke them all you want. For Camel's costlier tobaccos never jangle your nerves.
